Ma Kelly's Doorstep

by

Jane James

Ma Kelly is faced with a problem. She likes company and she trusts people, but sometimes the callers at her door are people she doesn't know.

Should she let them in when they need help?

If they are from the Water Board or the Police, they'll have a job to do, and we all pull together, just like in the War. But that was yesterday, there's all sorts call at your door these days, and sometimes they're up to no good.

She needs a plan to sort 'em all out – see if you can give her some tips!

On Mother Kelly's doorstep

Down Paradise Row

She keeps her door shut

To the folks she don't know

She stops and she thinks

And she puts on the chain

And she wont let them in

'Cos she uses her brain

Oh Nellie's the smartest down our alley.

On Mother Kelly's doorstep

I'm wondering now

If you'll all do it

'Cos we showed you how, Just now

And you can do it just like she does

On Mother Kelly's doorstep

Down Paradise Row
